BUMPER STICKER

When you're out driving with your family you probably see cars with bumper stickers. They are usually colorful, funny, and make an interesting point.

Your task: Create 2 bumper-sticker statements based on events or people in the unit we've been studying.

This entire sheet must be submitted with your assignment, stapled to the upper left hand corner.

Your bumper stickers must be:

- Related to the events or people in the unit
- Have a clear, meaningful, thoughtful point.
- Be high quality and colorful (With block letters and a colored background)
- On the back of each sticker, write 3-4 sentences that explain what point your bumper sticker is making and about which event or people, and the importance of the event/person to the unit.
- Optional: you may include a picture or symbol on your sticker if it relates to your message.
